Beauty cultures have a remarkable history as the practices, texts, and artefacts involved have circulated and transformed through time and space. The collective lecture traces the aesthetic praxeology of European beauty cultures from antiquity to the Middle Ages to the Early Modern period between medicine, pharmacology, and the arts. Christina Antenhofer (Salzburg), Jill Burke (Edinburgh), Montserrat Cabré (Cantabria), Irene Calà (Munich), Erin Griffey (Auckland), Timothy McCall (Villanova), Romana Sammern (Salzburg), Katharina Seidl (Innsbruck), and Andreas Winkler (Innsbruck) will present results from the itinerant symposium “Medicine, Beauty and the Body: Materials, Texts and Artifacts“ in Innsbruck, Schloss Ambras, Salzburg, and Vienna.

In cooperation with the KHM Museumsverband/Schloss Ambras Innsbruck; financed with the support of the State of Salzburg and the State of Tyrol.
